Using your pre-class readings as source material, write TWO sermons (a two-part sermon series) that could be preached in your church/ministry context describing the process of becoming and growing as a Christian based on John Wesley’s stages of spiritual development identified in your readings. In each sermon, be sure to cover the stages and concepts requested below, and show how each builds on the one before it and after it.

Be thorough. The stages/concepts covered in each sermon should result in a preached sermon approximately 25 minutes long (note: this may be longer than you usually preach. That is intentional. Please aim for this length for this assignment). Remember that the goal of this two-part sermon series is to help your congregants better understand the nature of salvation from a Wesleyan Christian perspective. You may creatively name/title your sermon series if you like.

Inclusive Language Covenant

The faculty of Emory Course of Study School has adopted a covenant statement encouraging inclusiveness in the use of language, as follows:

The Inclusive Language Covenant is designed to create a linguistic environment in which all students, staff, and faculty can grow in understanding and appreciating the rich diversity of God’s people. The COS faculty commits itself through continued discussion, reflection, and exploration to using language in such a way that we respond to the fullness of God’s presence among us as much by our choice of words as by our care for one another. Recognizing that our experience with inclusive language is an integral part of theological formation, we invite students and others to share as partners with us in this learning process.

We understand “covenant” more in terms of its biblical and theological meaning than in a legal or contractual context. Covenant signifies the common commitment of a community of faith in response to God’s revelation and in participation with one another. The values implied in the covenant have morally persuaded us to try to generate patterns of speech and behavior that bond the members of the community in mutual respect. We expect all members of the community to address issues of diversity constructively. The entire Inclusive Language Covenant can be found on the COS website, and you are encouraged to read the whole covenant.
