Course Description
This course introduces students to the role of the United Methodist pastor in biblical interpretation. Attention is given to the formation and function of the canon and to the development of a methodology of interpretation consistent with the nature of scripture. The importance of the Bible as a witness to the life and faith of ancient Israel and the earliest Christianity is illustrated from a survey of representative biblical materials (Genesis, Hosea, Amos, Mark, and Philippians).

Objectives
• To explore the role of the pastor as interpreter of the Bible in the life of the congregation.
• To foster understanding of the formation of the canon and its function within the community of faith, past and present.
• To provide a critical introduction to historical, literary, and theological approaches to scripture while keeping in mind the experimental dimension of biblical interpretation.
• To develop an exegetical methodology consistent with the nature and authority of the Bible.
• To survey representative materials from both the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament.
• To develop the ability to understand what the Bible meant historically and to interpret what it means today.

Required Advance Reading: The Biblical books of Genesis, Amos, Hosea, Mark, Philippians and Brueggeman’s The Bible Makes Sense

Assignment one: Pick one of the five biblical books to be discussed in the course and write two pages on your favorite passage in that book. Explain why it is your favorite and discuss what you think is the most important issue raised by it for people of faith today.
Assignment two: Read and write a five page reflection paper on Brueggeman’s The Bible Makes Sense. Include your views on which of his insights have the most potential usefulness for your work in the local church and which can you see raising issues or conflicts in your church setting.

Guidelines for Written Assignments

- All papers should be typed, double-spaced, on 8 ½” by 11” paper, unless the instructor has asked for a different format specifically within the precourse work. Font should be Times New Roman or something similar and no larger than size 12. Margins are to be 1” on all four sides of each page.
- All papers must include a page number and the last name of the student in either the header or footer of every page.
- You should note the question you are answering at the beginning of each new section of materials.
- All papers should provide citations for all quoted material. You may use MLA, Turabain, APA or Chicago Style.
- Punctuation should be consistent; clarity of meaning is the primary purpose of punctuation. Edit and retype material as needed and check spelling in a standard dictionary.
- All papers should attempt to eliminate discriminatory language—for example: racism, ageism, sexism, classism, and prejudicial usage concerning handicapping conditions.

Inclusive Language Covenant

The faculty of Emory Course of Study School has adopted a covenant statement encouraging inclusiveness in the use of language, as follows:

The Inclusive Language Covenant is designed to create a linguistic environment in which all students, staff, and faculty can grow in understanding and appreciating the rich diversity of God’s people. The COS faculty commits itself—through continued discussion, reflection, and exploration—to using language in such a way that we respond to the fullness of God’s presence among us as much by our choice of words as by our care for one another. Recognizing that our experience with inclusive language is an integral part of theological formation, we invite students and others to share as partners with us in this learning process.

We understand “covenant” more in terms of its biblical and theological meaning than in a legal or contractual context. Covenant signifies the common commitment of a community of faith in response to God’s revelation and in partnership with one another. The values implied in the covenant have morally persuaded us to try to generate patterns of speech and behavior that bond the members of the community in mutual respect. We expect all members of the community to address issues of diversity constructively. The entire Inclusive Language Covenant can be found on the COS website, and you are encouraged to read the whole covenant.

In all fields, you plagiarize when you use a source’s words or ideas without citing that source. In most fields, you plagiarize even when you do credit the source but use its exact words without using quotation marks or block indentation” (201-202). Booth, Wayne C. Booth, Gregory G.
